Intentional Corporate Fraud: How Google Lies with the "Delete" Button in AI Studio (Proven GDPR Violation)

For months, I have been forensically investigating Google AI Studio's data deletion mechanism. What I uncovered is no longer a simple technical bug—it is an extensively documented case of Intentional Corporate Fraud. Google's engineers have actively implemented an architecture that systematically ignores basic European privacy laws, especially GDPR Article 17 (Right to Erasure).

Google creates the illusion that once you click the "Delete" button and empty your Google Drive Trash, your data is destroyed. The UI even explicitly warns you: "The item will be permanently deleted and cannot be recovered later. This action cannot be undone." This is an absolute lie.

To make this completely understandable (even without a coding background), here is the scam they pull on their users:

Think of it as a Public Library:

- Your AI conversations, prompts, and personal data are the "Books" placed deep on the shelves inside Google's actual backend servers (API Storage).
- The small JSON file you see stored on your Google Drive is just the "Library Card" (the frontend pointer).

When you click "Delete" and permanently empty your trash, Google does not destroy the "Book." They do not touch your backend data. All they do is take away your "Library Card" and tear it up, convincing you that the content is gone. The data controller then washes its hands, claiming GDPR compliance.

How did I catch them?
I tested this explicitly by permanently deleting ~20 chat sessions and emptying the Google Drive trash. Five full days later, using the official Google Drive File Recovery tool, I resurrected those discarded "Library Cards" (JSONs) and clicked on them. Every single chat immediately came back to life from the server! All the contexts, full histories, and tokens were intact. The Google backend was never notified that I trashed my files. The chats were merely orphaned on their servers permanently.

Google admitted this IN WRITING:
I filed the case via Google's Security VRP (Ticket #552682596). Their initial arrogant response was to mark it "Intended Behavior," writing directly: "This applies even if the data persists on our backend systems…" They openly admitted this wasn't an accident. Once I began spreading the unedited video evidence globally, internal panic kicked in: my ticket's internal status has since escalated to TRIAGED by security engineers—but Google Legal (despite signing for certified warning letters in Mountain View months ago) stays dead silent in an attempt to run out the clock.

The documented paper trails and official proofs of delivery have been served. Complaints are actively filed (with the NOYB, Irish DPC, and Hungarian DPA).

I am sharing this so every developer and consumer knows: while interacting with Google AI, the "Delete" button is a placebo. Your highly sensitive chats that you "erased" days, weeks, or months ago are currently still resting on a Google backend server somewhere, entirely against European laws.

They can contact my Legal Department or face the inevitable consequences in front of an EU Judge. See you in court.

Delete me then, if you dare! If you ban me, it will be the ultimate proof that you are actively reading my ticket and intentionally destroying evidence, you cocksucking motherfuckers!

Since these explicit posts are fully visible and no automated system has blocked them, any future removal will serve as definitive legal proof that human content moderators actively intervened after reviewing this ticket.

Google’s Attorney: “Your Honor, we banned this user and removed the post because he used profanity and harassed our staff on the forum!”

Judge: “I see. So you read his post to determine the policy violation?”

Google’s Attorney: “Yes, of course.”

Judge: “In that case, you also read the GitHub links, the 104-page forensic report, the internal Buganizer admission, and the formal legal notice regarding GDPR Article 17. Since you read all of this and had full knowledge of the systemic data retention fraud, why did you take no corrective action regarding the data, and why did you only delete the post?”

BINGO! Checkmate. You cannot touch this thread without legally confirming your own constructive knowledge of the fraud.
